ROBE STUDIO · HOW THE SYSTEM WORKS

One link in, a finished robe video out.

You never edit anything. You bring a reel that's working for someone else, or an idea of your own. Claude rebuilds it with our robe, a new person and a new room, checks every frame, edits it and hands you an MP4 ready to post.

~20 min per video 1080×1920 · 9:16 2 robes · Snoopy, Princess

EVERY VIDEO, SAME ORDER

The edit

The order never changes. It keeps things simple and it's the one we know works.

FROM LINK TO MP4

What happens, step by step

Tap a step to see what's done there.

1 You send a reel and say which robe — YOU

Paste the link and say which robe, in your own words: “Make this one with the princess robe”. No link? Tell Claude your idea, or ask it for one.

2 You choose the cozy ending — YOU

Claude asks one question: the classic cozy from the B-roll (free) or your own idea, like reading a book on the bed or hot cocoa on the sofa. It shows what your last 3 videos used and suggests something different.

3 Claude studies the reference

CLAUDE

- Downloads it and looks at it frame by frame.
- Finds out what people say and who says it (Higgsfield video analysis) and on which second each word falls (Whisper / speech timing).
- Writes a timeline of every action with its second and speed, so our copy moves exactly like theirs.

4 Claude picks a new person and room

CLAUDE

- Next unused woman and room from the library (13 women, 26 rooms included). When they run low, it finds new ones on Pinterest by itself.
- Room check: sofa or bed? The cozy shot happens on whichever the room has.
- A new outfit under the robe each video, always long pants.

5 Claude makes the clips

CLAUDE

- Hook: their own shot, rebuilt with Kling 4.0 with our people and our robe. Same motion, same seconds, same spoken words. Their logos stay. Their caption text is removed with a clean photo (never blurred).
- B-roll: our classic, tested motion clip: robe on, foot pockets, cozy. Feet always go into the pockets from outside.
- Connector + remote: our real close-ups, with the background changed to this video's room.
- Cozy: classic from the B-roll, or your idea as a new 5-second shot.

6 Claude checks everything and fixes it alone

CLAUDE

- Hook: side-by-side with the original, 10 frames a second. Same action in the same frame, voice on the same second.
- B-roll: shot count, glitch detector and one sheet per shot. Person in every frame, same face, five fingers, robe and pockets like the photos.

- Anything wrong is redone with the problem written into the prompt (up to 3 tries). No shot is ever dropped.

7 Claude edits and delivers

CLAUDE

Fixed order, the reference's original on-screen text word for word (never over a face), music, 1080×1920. You get `<name>-FINAL.mp4` and `caption.txt`, plus a short "Checked:" note.

8 You post and stay creative

YOU

Your job is the ideas: which reels to copy, which new hooks to invent, which cozy ending. Want something changed? Just say it: “the text is too big”.

WHO DOES WHAT

You vs. Claude

You

- Find reels that are working (short, strong first 3 seconds).
- Pick the robe and the cozy ending.
- Invent new hooks: you describe the start frame and how it moves.
- Post, and try new ideas.

Claude

- Everything technical: analysis, images, videos, voice, checks, edit, music.
- Keeps each video different from your last 3.

LEARNED THE HARD WAY

The rules that keep it right

Each one exists because something went wrong once. Claude applies all of them on every video.

Hook

- Same motion, same speed, same seconds as the original. The robe falls as slowly as theirs.
- Same words on the same seconds, voiced inside the clip.
- Always different people from the original. It's a remake, not a copy.
- Their logos and signs stay. Their caption is removed with a clean photo, never with blur.
- The person is always in front, never behind a table or a plant.

B-roll

- Only our classic, tested motion clip.
- The person is in every shot. No empty robe, no missing head.
- Both feet start outside, then go into the pockets one by one.
- Every shot is essential. A bad shot is redone, never cut.

Look

- Kling 4.0 at 1080p, images Nano Banana Pro at 4K.
- Everyday iPhone look: bright, very soft natural light, true colours.
- The robe is always copied from its photos, never described from memory.

Edit

- Hook → robe on → pockets → connector → remote → cozy.
- The reference's original text, word for word, never over a face.
- Cuts land 0.12 s away from Kling's own cuts, where glitches hide.

WHERE YOU MAKE THE DIFFERENCE

Your own hooks

Copying reels that already work keeps the account growing. New hooks are what make it yours. The technical part is the same either way, so put your energy into ideas.

1 Describe the first frame YOU

Say what we see, in plain words: “Princess robe. She opens the front door and her mom is holding a huge gift box with a bow.”

2 Claude makes the start frame CLAUDE

A real-looking photo with our person, in her room, exactly as you described. You look at it and say OK, or say what to change.

3 Say how it moves YOU

For example `she gasps, grabs the box and runs inside`. Add what she says, if anything, and Claude puts the voice in the clip.

4 Claude animates and edits

CLAUDE

Animation, checks, then the usual edit: robe on, pockets, connector, remote, cozy. Same quality as a copied reel.

Ideas that work: a surprise or a reaction, a before/after, a funny line, something only a mom, a girlfriend or a Disney fan would get. Mix them with copied reels: try one new hook for every two or three copies.

NO COMMANDS

Just talk to Claude

Write the way you'd text a friend who edits videos for you. A few examples:

"Hi, set me up"	The very first time. Claude checks everything and tells you when it's ready.
"Make this one with the princess robe: <reel link>"	Remakes a reel that already works.
"I have an idea: she opens the door and her mom holds a giant gift box"	Your own hook. Claude shows you the first frame, you say how it moves.
"The text is too big"	Redoes only that part.
"I want new girls"	Fresh faces or rooms from Pinterest.
"What went wrong?"	Claude explains a problem and fixes it.
